Ukraine

As Ukraine prepares itself for a spring offensive to throw out its Russian invaders, we are becoming increasingly concerned at President Zelensky's plans not only to free Ukraine from Russian tyranny, but his stated intention to invade neighbouring Crimea and sack its Russian appointed Prime Minister.
Since Russia invaded Ukraine in February 2022 Zelensky has enjoyed massive support from most western nations, let's hope his expansion ambitions don't jeopardise that support.

Sláva Ukrayíni!, "Glory to Ukraine!"

Local Elections

As the local election results show a large surge towards Labour and Lib Dem candidates, British nationalists failed to win a single seat. The Reform Party fought over 500 seats without one victory, and UKIP lost all 6 of its seats. The Britain First party contested 8 seats and finished a credible 2nd in two of them.
We would like to thank all nationalist candidates for their brave efforts. Electioneering is bloody hard work and often unrewarding. Thanks You Comrades.

British Government Migrant Plan

All Talk... No Action

In the late part of 2021, senior Tory politicians were promising to "take back control of our borders". Plans to send migrants to Rwanda for processing came and went in early 2022, after 121 lawsuits were launched at a cost of £1.3 million of taxpayers' money.

By the end of 2022 the reality of "taking back our borders" was that over 45,000 illegal migrants had entered Britain in small boats. Just 215 had been deported!

Government then launched their "Illegal Migration Bill", which brought the Rwanda plan back to Parliament, where currently it is being savaged on its way through the unelected House of Lords. The bill also seeks to make migrants who enter Britain illegally via small boats across the Channel automatically illegible to quality for Asylum Seeker status.

This too is expected to face a myriad of legal challenges!

In the meantime, hotel accommodation for these invaders costs the taxpayer £6 million a day. In an effort to cut costs the government have announced they will be using converted barges for processing, The first of these "floating hotels" arrived in Portland in Dorset, and we were told it would accommodate 500 migrants. The owners of the barge, the Bibby Stockholm, claims it offers "luxury living on board" with a gym, TV and games room, and restaurant facilities. All catering costs will be paid by the British taxpayer. It has been used by the Dutch government to house asylum seekers in the past. Charter costs are expected to be in the region of £4 million a year and mooring costs have not yet been disclosed.

Is this barge an answer to the migrant problem, or just another government gimmick?

To accommodate the 45,000 migrants that arrived last year, and the 7 000 that have arrived so far this year will take 100 barges!

A plan, or a gimmick? What do you think?

Another "All Talk-No Action" gimmick has been to release on bail illegal migrants that have been refused asylum and are awaiting deportation. So far 12,800 Albanian migrants sentenced to deportation have been bailed, and simply vanished!

Albanian Simply Vanish Before Being Deported

The Way Forward

Movements and Parties

Miss Rotha Lintorn-Orman founded the original British Fascists in 1923. Since then, we have not gained a single Member of Parliament. There have been a few MPs who were elected as members of other parties who sided with us, such as Captain Archibald Ramsey, Henry Kerby, and Harold Soref, but none that were elected as fascists or British nationalists.

Rotha Lintorn-Orman

British nationalists should not be confused with Scottish, Irish, Welsh, or Cornish nationalists who represent the Celtic nations.
We have had plenty of local councillors, and the BNP under Nick Griffin had two Euro MPs and a member of the London Assembly, but no Westminster MPs.

The National Front in the 1980s and the British National Party in the 2000s were mass movements with paid staff and talented organisers. They fielded scores of candidates in parliamentary election without success; in fact, their average votes were no better than those achieved by Mosley's post-war Union Movement. He got 8.1% in North Kensington in 1959, just 14 years after the war against fascism, and despite a torrent of hostile propaganda from the mass media.

The British public have always been against mass migration but their opinions do not translate into votes for minority parties.
UKIP was a flash in the pan promoted by the popular press and funded by reactionary millionaires. They were a one issue party dedicated to getting the UK out of the European Union. They achieved their ambition, and lost their reason for existing, in 2016 when 52% of the participating electorate voted for Brexit.

They have regrouped as the Reform Party with a right-wing agenda totally lacking in racial consciousness.

Since the collapse of the BNP various small parties have emerged to compete with the National Front and British Movement, both of which were founded over fifty years ago.

Reform Party: No racial consciousness

There is no reason to suppose that these groups will be any more successful than their predecessors. Most of them are little more than a website, and none of them can boast a charismatic leader.
What then is the point of them? I believe that the League of St George has shown what can be done by a small but dedicated group of patriots.

The Way Forward

Putting up candidates in elections is good for training members and raising funds, even if the result is only one or two percent.

The BNP Gained Seats in the European Parliament But No Westminster Successes

And so is the production of hard copy magazines such as; League Sentinel. Broadsword, Candour, and Heritage and Destiny. The dissemination of information is our lifeblood. We are opposed by a mass media owned by billionaires like Rupert Murdoch, but we can still get our message across. Unfortunately, the UK has an apathetic population that is easily distracted, and a first-past-the-post electoral system that favours the big parties, but we can still make a difference.

We have left the EU but we are still a European country with the same economic and social problems as our neighbours. Events in Italy, France, Sweden, and Hungary have shown what can be done.

Let's forget about personal and political differences and concentrate on educating the masses. If a billionaire backer suddenly appears we can hold mass rallies, distribute multicoloured magazines, stand candidates in every election, and generally make ourselves known. But until such time we must continue to state our case by any legal means.

Local Elections:

No Wins for Nationalist Parties

None of Britain's nationalist parties managed to win seats in the recent local elections. Britain First stood eight candidates, finishing second and third in two of their target seats.

Ashlea Simon

Ashlea Simon finished 2nd in Walkden North ward in Salford near Manchester, polling 18.1%, slightly down from the 21% she polled in this ward last year.

With the seat being taken by Labour, Ashlea still managed to defeat the candidates from the Conservatives, Liberal Democrats, the Green Party and the Reform Party!

Paul Harding finished 3rd in Hockley and Ashingdon ward in Rochford Essex, polling 13.1%. Defeating the Lib Dems and Greens.

The British Democrats fielded five candidates, with Julian Leppert finishing 3rd after polling 25% in Waltham Abbey Paternoster ward.

Britain First Candidate Attacked

Britain First leader, Paul Golding was seriously attacked while out electioneering in his Dartford, Kent seat. Without warning a well built black man emerged from a house shouting abuse. Seconds later he punched Paul in the face. He then ran back into the house and came out carrying what appeared to be a large knife. After threatening activists canvassing with Paul, he again run back into the house, returning a short time later with what appeared to be a Japanese Samurai sword and threatened to decapitate Paul. Police were called and entered the house emerging after about 10 minutes with the suspect in handcuffs and another officer carrying the bladed weapons. Despite the potential graphic headlines of "Race Attack" or "Hate Crime" the incident went largely unreported in the national press.

Patriotic Alternative Keeps Busy

As the Home Office continues to dump unwanted economic migrants in small towns throughout the country, Patriotic Alternative has been busy helping local residents organise protest gatherings. The largest of these was in Cannock where over 500 members of the public gathered to hear speeches by activists describing the tactics used to successfully oppose the housing of economic migrants in Linton on Ouse and Cottingham.

British Democrats Retain Council Seats

Two British Democrat councillors, Lawrence Rustem and John Robinson have retained their council seats in recent by-elections.

Lawrence retained his seat in Detling, Kent, which he won in 2022, and John Robinson was re-elected to Barnham council in West Sussex.

Following his victory, John, who has lived in the area his whole life, has been invited to serve on the council planning committee.

The British Democrats are contesting local council seats in various parts of the country in the forthcoming local elections.

Scientific Advances in National Socialist Germany

By P.A

On June 19 of this year a very interesting article appeared in the pages of the Spanish newspaper 'El País'. It concerned the discovery of Auroch (Bos primigenius) tracks found in Trafalgar (Cádiz province) and Matalascañas (Huelva), which date back 106,000 years.

According to Carlos Neto de Carvalho, a geologist, paleontologist and scientist at the Dom Luiz Institute (University of Lisbon) and the UNESCO Geopark Naturtejo (Portugal), "the fossil record of the behaviour of these large mammals is rare throughout the world. It had never before appeared in rocks and sediments as those that our team identified at Cape Trafalgar". The entire Gulf of Cádiz was already known to have been a refuge for the mega fauna that were contemporaries of Neanderthals, and this new discovery reveals the first steps towards the domestication of animals, one of humanity's most important advancements. In Huelva, the same team has discovered traces of Palaeoloxodon antiquus, straight-tusked elephants similar to the current day ones, but up tp 13ft tall, wild boars (Sus scrofa scrofa) that tripled the size of those that exist today and weighed up to 660lb. The newly found tracks show that the male Aurochs would have measured 6ft 5in in height, weighed 3,300lb with 31 inch horns and hooves up to 11 inches long. As Neto de Cavalho explains, "the rounded footprints of a current adult bull rarely exceed 4 inches." He adds, "We had the experience in Matalascañas of measuring the footprints of 'Cariñoso' a bull weighing 2,487lb and they did not exceed 7 inches". The Aurochs declined during the late Holocene period due to habitat loss and hunting, and became extinct when the last individual died in 1627 in Jaktorów Forest in Poland. They are considered to be the wild ancestor of modern domestic cattle (Bos indicus).

Heck Cattle

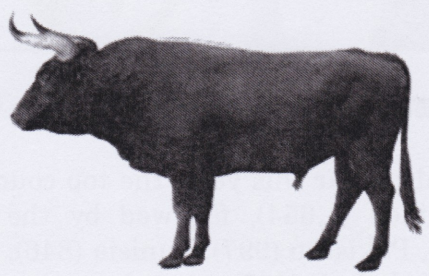
In the first years of the Weimer Republic, the brothers Heinz and Lutz Heck (sons of the Berlin Zoological Garden director, Ludwig Heck) independently started their extensive 'breeding-back' programmes, based on the knowledge of animal genetics of the time. Their motivation was to rescue the Aurochs from oblivion because they were constantly confused with the European Bison, the other large bovine of the Holocene period. They felt that creating a 'look-alike', and putting both together would help to show the difference to a broader public. To achieve this the brothers believed they would be able to reconstruct the species from cross-breeding of various modern 'Aurochs-derived' breeds and therefore correct the mistake man made when killing them off (1). To this end they examined cave paintings and cattle breeds from across Europe to create their idea of what the Auroch would have been like.

The Heck brothers grew up in the grounds of Berlin Zoo and became interested in animals and zoology from an early age.

Heinz and Lutz Heck

Heinz (22/1/1894 - 5/3/1982) became a Biologist whilst Lutz (23/4/1892 - 6/4/1983) studied Natural Sciences at the University of Berlin. Lutz also showed an interest in politics, and as a student fought with the volunteer forces ("Freikorps") against Socialists and Communists on the streets of Berlin. In 1933 he became a member of the Förderndes Mitglied der SS and in 1937 joined the NSDAP (membership number 3,934,018). In April 1941 he was appointed chief of the Oberste Naturschütz Behörde im Reichsforstamt (2) by his hunting friend Hermann Göring, whose own private hunting reserves, in the Bialowieza Forest between Poland and Belarus were planned, as part of "Generalplan Ost", to be the home of the reconstituted Aurochs

.So how successful were the Heck brothers in their attempts to re-create the Auroch? Lutz Heck used Spanish Fighting Bulls for his breed, some of which were released into the Polish Rominka Forest, but were exterminated at the end of the Second World War as these cattle were aggressive and their ecological impact on the native fauna was considered to be unpredictable. Interestingly all of the living "Heck" cattle go back to the stock of his brother Heinz who was interned, but later released, for suspected membership of the Communist Party. In 1932 the first bull that Heinz Heck believed to resemble an Auroch was born and named "Glachl". He was 75% Corsican and 25% a Grey cattle/Lowland/Highland/Angela cross. As a consequence most modern Heck cattle go back to Central European dairy and beef cattle. There are at present about 2000 Heck cattle in Europe and a few elsewhere, of which about 600 roam freely. Obviously there are many detractors who dismiss Heck cattle as another example of "Nazi puesdo-science" (their term not mine of course), but imagine what the Heck brothers could have achieved today with DNA and modern scientific knowledge? Amusingly 'The Guardian' on 5 January 2015 carried an article entitled "Devon farmer forced to offload aggressive Nazi-bred 'super cows'", and Alex Bushill of the BBC stated that "During the Second World War, the Heck cow was a symbol of Nazi ambitions to rule the world". "Ubercows"?



I'll leave you to make your own conclusions!!

Migrant Resistance Spreads Throughout Europe

ITALY

The new Italian government led by Giorgia Meloni is facing an ever growing invasion of economic migrants. Interior Ministry data shows 13,067 boat migrants have arrived in Italy between Jan 1st and February 23rd 2023 against 5,273 in the corresponding period of 2022.

The Meloni government has introduced a new law restricting the activities of charity "rescue boats" which act as a taxi service for economic migrants.
The move has sharply restricted rescue ships operations and has added to their costs.
As 51% of migrants arrive by sea via Libya, Meloni is also negotiating with the Libyan government to pay them to detain would-be migrants and prevent them from leaving for Europe.

Giorgia Meloni

Of the arrivals so far this year, the top country of origin is Guinea (1,654), followed by the Ivory Coast (1,511), Pakistan (997), Tunisia (846), Egypt (490) and Bangladesh (447).
In 2022, the top country of origin was Egypt (20,542), followed by Tunisia (18,148), Bangladesh (14,982), Syria (8,594) and Afghanistan (7,241).

GERMANY

Whilst the German government continues with its liberal approach to migrants, local opposition has grown. In the North-East town of Greifswald, 500 locals protested against a decision to build an accommodation centre for migrants

German citizens protest

In recent weeks there have been several protests in the state against accommodation centres for migrants and refugees, with some demonstrations becoming violent At the end of January, riots took place during a meeting against the construction of an accommodation unit for 400 refugees in Upahl, a village with 500 residents located in the northwest of the state. Unrest is forecast to continue.

Belgium Declares Migration "Crisis"

Belgium on Thursday announced it would expand reception capacity to cope with what it called a migration "crisis" as EU ministers debated bringing down rising numbers of arrivals and overhauling their broken asylum rules ahead a bloc-wide election next year. Belgium's reception capacity of just over 34,000 places is currently nearly entirely full, according to asylum agency Fedasil, leading to scenes like the ones in Brussels where people have been left to fend for themselves, setting fires against the cold in the city centre.
"The challenge is very great, more than 100,000 people arrived in our country last year and the influx remains higher than normal," said Belgium's asylum and migration minister, Nicole de Moor.

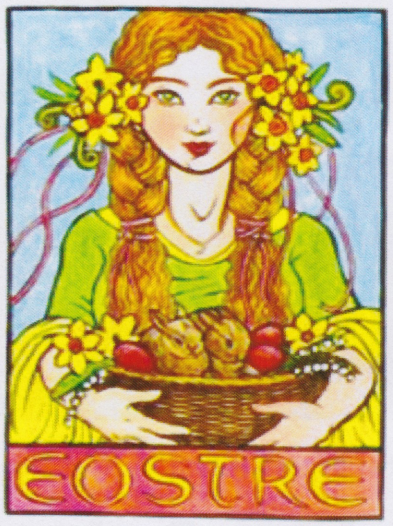
OSTARA

THE GODDESS OF SPRING

The traditional Festival of Spring and the Spring Solstice have largely vanished into the Christian festival of Easter, but what is the Festival of Spring and the Spring Solstice? Both of which were celebrated by our North European ancestors long before Christianity.

Ostara: The Goddess of Spring

Like many Christian festivals, Easter has it's origins in Pagan times. As Christians celebrate the "re-birth" or resurrection of the founder of their religion, Jesus Christ, they were preceded by the Pagans of Northern Europe who honoured the Norse Goddess, "Ostara," or "Eostre," as she was known by the West Saxons. And, while the Christian festival of Easter is a moveable festival, occurring on various dates in March or April, the Pagan festival of Ostara, was determined by the date of the vernal, or spring equinox, when the position of the sun creates an astronomical phenomenon when day and night are of equal length. This always occurs on either March 20th or 21st. After the death of winter, spring brought longer days and the re-birth of the trees and plants in the North European forests and fields. The trees were budding, the birds nesting and the sun gathered strength day by day. "Mother Earth" was being "re-born". It was a time for the planting of crops. The animals of the forest were emerging and breeding, hares and rabbits were plentiful and birds began to lay their eggs. The Goddess Ostara (pictured right) was venerated as the divinity of the radiant dawn, and a bringer of fertility and growth. Bonfires were lit and feasting was held for two days.



As we approach the spring equinox, remember the Goddess Ostara, and the goodness she brings us mortals. Go into the woods and forests and see the proof for yourself, how the rules of nature are more powerful than the rules of man.

And give thanks!

The author is a member of an Essex-based Pagan group, and has studied and practiced various forms of Paganism for over 30 years.

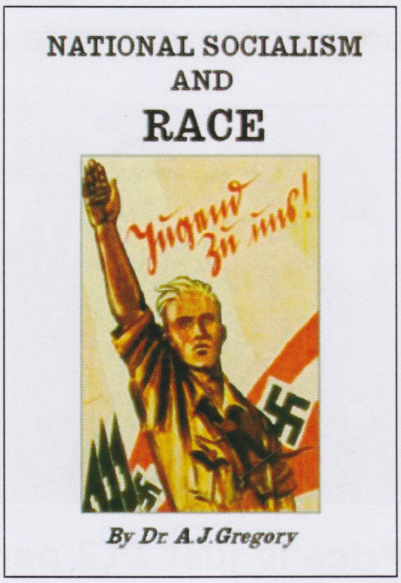
National Socialism and RACE

By Dr. A.J. Gregor



A serious look at the racial policies of the 3rd Reich explains how the vague ideas of Adolf Hitler in the early years of his political struggle developed in the 1930s into an exaggerated obsession with Nordicism. This occurred quite separately and with the disapproval of many of the National Socialist leaders. By the late1930s a far more rational view became official policy. The entire histories of these developments are explained by Dr Gregor. Over 100 footnotes are provided giving references and sources.
